1

Nabi lived in Myanmar. He loved to play with his friends in the village.

They loved to go across the field to visit the pond, where they would throw rocks into the water.

2

Azara is Nabi's mother. She has 8 children. Sometimes her home would get very noisy with all the children.

"Why don't you go outside and play?" Azara said to her children. Nabi grabbed a banana from the table on his way out the door.

3

Nabi stopped to see a few of his friends on the road playing marbles.

They invited him to play, but he didn't feel like joining them. He wanted to visit the pond instead.

4

Nabi went to the edge of the field and saw some kids shooting rocks into the pond.

He wanted to do the same, so he looked around for some rocks he could throw.

5

Suddenly, Nabi fell into the pond.

Nobody noticed Nabi fall as they were preoccupied with playing games.

Nabi couldn't swim.

He couldn't scream for help or make loud splashing sounds.

It wasn't until later that evening when Azara noticed he still wasn't home. She sent out her oldest son to look for Nabi, but he was nowhere to be found.

The next day, some workers found Nabi in the pond.

By that time, it was too late.

Drowning is one of the leading causes of injury deaths in Myanmar.

This isn't limited to children -- people of all ages drown every year.

Teaching about water safety is an essential to avoid these dangerous situations.

We are grateful to partner with organizations in Myanmar that are raising awareness of this important issue through storytelling.
